UNESCO Biosphere Reserves are places where people share a way of living with nature that builds a future we're proud of. We model solutions for a sustainable future, celebrate cultural and biological diversity, and empower people to engage with one another and with nature in healthier ways. Fundy Biosphere Reserve contributes in building vibrant and resilient human and environmental communities through conservation and promotion of sustainable development in the Upper Bay of Fundy region.

Fundy Biosphere Reserve has created local, relevant, and engaging content about conservation, climate change, natural history, and important biogeographic features of the Upper Bay of Fundy region. We also have a proven record of creating education materials, relevant to and aligned with NB curricular guidelines. We are looking for a website and app developer to help showcase the biosphere to the world.
